The match last Saturday against Nuneaton was rearranged to take place at Honor Oak Park in the morning, thus enabling support to be given to Warwickshire, or Hampshire as loyalty would have it, in the County Final. The 1st XV obviously relished this opportunity to be about early on Saturday morning and a fine game resulted in a good win and the biggest number of tries scored by the first team since the opening match of the season. A fine performance this, deserving every commendation, following an entertaining match against London Welsh the previous week, apparently enjoyed by all.

The A XV have recently had a mild reversal of form following their outstanding run of success in December and January. This season they have showed consistently that points can be scored, however, and have recovered from a depressing opening. Captain Child is to be congratulated on this improvement and on his marriage last Saturday.

Last Sunday, a team entered the United Hospitals Sevens tournament, survived one game and went out in the following round in time for tea. As a sociable gathering of the Hospital rugby fraternity, it might be more suitable for this tournament to be held later in the season, and perhaps a spare Saturday could be set aside for it. As players will endorse, Sunday games following a stiff Saturday match are always rather a strain.

Today we welcome Williams and Govan in to the side in place of Peace and Gourley, engaged with the examiners.

OUR VISITORS

We welcome Gloucester, who are having a variable season, having had fifteen wins, two draws and thirteen defeats in scoring 372 points against 363. Fine wins have been recorded against Leicester 26—11, Coventry 14—8, Wasps 19—0 and Richmond 14—11 last week, while surprising losses have occurred against Oxford University 8—39, Bristol 0—23 and London Scottish 5—36.

Today's team is captained by Townsend and includes county players Hillyer, Holder, Meadows, Hopson, Booth, Townsend, Taylor, Long and Ford.

We wish Gloucester an enjoyable visit and a successful conclusion to their season.
