GLOUCESTER v. MOSELEY.

By "TEEK."

This game—which Gloucester won by 13 pts. to 8—was like a pantomime. Donkey—all the skill, foresight and leadership in the first half. Moseley attacked briskly at the start and tested Thomas on a number of occasions.

Thomas, however, stood the test every time.

His place was taken by Mr. Browning of Gloucester, who appeared dressed in a grey lounge suit and a benevolent expression. He removed his coat just to show that he was really in earnest—round and round the field.

A further stage was reached when some mischief-Gloucester imp torsk the fabric of a Moseley forward's breeks.

The victim, R. H. Walker, seemed to feel both his position and the draught very keenly, but stoutly refused to change on the ground.

A study in hairdressing. Contrasting styles favoured by Millington and McIlwaine.
